or more of the destroyers from the fleet to escort the Mayflower from the moment when she passed out of the capes of Virginia and entered the high seas until she passed again into American jurisdiction just off Sandy Hook. It was pointed out that when President that the same times of peace his battleship was accompanied by another of equal power and speed and armament, as a convoying cruiser.

It was suggested in Washington that the absence of a cohooy might be taken as the President's method of signifying to the public that he sailed with a mind at peace and felt no need for auxiliary vessels to accompany him on the journey. It was intimated that the announcement of the Navy Department that a convoy was considered unnecessary and would not serve in this instance might be a polite sort of a flexibility of the administication; that actually the Mayflower would be safeguarded with her important passenger and nothing said about it at headquarters.

Washington, May 14 .- The strain is over for the present. Washington sees a little pause ahead and is settling back to enjoy it. The President will be absent in New York until the middle of next week, and no word from Germany is expected in the interval.

The American note to Germany was delayed in transmission and was not telegraphed from Rome until 3:40 p. m. to-day, so that it probably will not be presented by Ambassador Gerard to the German Foreign Office until to-morrow. This was announced by Secretary

The State Department received a message from Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page, at Rome, saying the note was received there at 2 p. m. today, and was immediately copied and forwarded to Berlin at 3:40. It should have reached Berlin Late this afternoon, but the time required for
